The Sun-Times editorials are more critical of the Agency. The paper is adamant in its opinion on separating the CIA and the press (16 April 1980); and is critical of the Agency as reflected in the 26 August and 10 May 1978 editorials on Kampiles and Stockwell, respectively. They are very critical of the CIA as a result of the Kampiles findings and, again, of the Agency's activities in Angola as a result of Stockwell's accusations.

Their 13 February 1978 editorial strongly supports President Carter's Intelligence Community reorganization plan.

The Sun-Times wants airtight controls over the CIA. However, the paper's views are somewhat relaxed in a 26 January 1980 editorial where it supports "secret-sharing to the intelligence committees of both houses" only. Limiting FOIA requests to "Americans seeking to confirm that their own rights have not been violated" is also approved, but only when "clear rules and regulations" are established to prevent the abuses revealed in the 70's.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

CHICAGO SUN-TIMES

A tabloid privately owned by Field Enterprises, Inc. Marshall Field was Chairman of the Board until 1965. Field Enterprises owns the World Book Encyclopedia, Childcraft (childrens' series) and the now defunct Chicago Daily News, which closed its doors in March of 1978.

The Sun-Times was founded in 1948 through the merger of the Sun and the Times and was founded by Marshall Field III.

Field founded the Sun in 1941 and bought the Times in 1947. In 1972 he initiated the innovation of recycled newsprint. The syndicate now serves 30 newspapers.

The editorial staff numbers almost 300.

CONFERENCE ON INTELLIGENCE
LEGISLATION

For the past year and a half, the ABA Standing Committee on Law and National Security has been following developments in the Congress on new legislation affecting intelligence. To complement this research and to broaden its sources of ideas and suggestions concerning its programs in the intelligence area, the Committee is sponsoring a day and a half conference on intelligence legislation.

*The ABA Standing Committee on Law and National Security and the University of Chicago Law School
Conference on Intelligence Legislation*

Conference Theme: Defining the relationships between the intelligence community and the Congress, the Judiciary, and the public through legislation.

We would like to identify issues for further study. Memoranda concerning subjects, materials, experts and additional participants will be most welcome.

There is no charge for attendance or for the dinner or luncheons. Any questions concerning conference arrangements should be addressed to Mrs. Florence Bank, 1101 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Suite 600, Washington, D.C. 20036.
